EDGAR MUNHALL
 & Greuze the Draftsman

FRICK ART REFERENCE LIBRARY

SPRING — SUMMER 2002

CAUTION CURATOR AT WORK

Long aware of the treasures housed in the Frick Art Reference Library, I was delighted to be invited by Patricia Barnett — upon my retirement from The Frick Collection — to be a Distinguished Scholar in Residence here during the preparation of my exhibition Greuze the Draftsman and, specifically, its catalogue. Immediately at hand was almost everything I needed, besides my own copious files: standard reference works, sales, exhibition and museum catalogues, monographs, and photographs. In addition, I found the library's skilled and patient staff eager to assist me in many ways, not the least of all over my fanciful notion of computer skills. I hope the exhibition and its catalogue will be a sufficient testimony of my gratitude.

EDGAR MUNHALL

For thirty-seven years, Edgar Munhall's grace and intellect have been a source of inspiration and stimulation to the staff of the Frick Art Reference Library. During the past two years, having him as our first Distinguished Scholar in Residence has been a special honor. He has given us an exceptional opportunity to observe how comprehensively the resources of our beloved institution can be applied to the serious research required for preparation of the exhibition Greuze the Draftsman and its formidable catalogue. We are also happy to exhibit some samples of Edgar Munhall's travel diaries, illustrated by him, along with notations of daily menus. Though these miniature albums have a certain cult celebrity, they are exhibited here for the first time. We are deeply grateful to Edgar for having taken the time to prepare this display that so aptly demonstrates how his thirst for knowledge, indefatigable energy, and whimsical sense of humor conspired to bring about the great exhibition that The Frick Collection celebrates this year.
